

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, April 16. 1717.

From the Hague Courant, dated April 21.

Caminieck, March 18.

THE Imperial Troops that lie at Campo Longo, have so well pursued the Body of Tartars that lately made Incursions into this Territory, that they overtook and fell upon a Party of them in a Defile, and cut them to pieces, and have put to Flight the rest, consisting of 4000 Men, at the Head of whom was the new Hospodar of Wallachia, killing and taking Prisoners a great Number of them.

Lemberg, March 24. The Diet of the District of Halicze is broke up with great Dissention, by Reason that the General Diet had been held before the Matter was brought to them, and the Primate's Vote was refus'd. Also the Lord of Wislay, protested against the new made Constitution, and the Manifesto concerning the exempting the Estates of Ecclesiasticks from contributing to the Maintenance of the Troops. Nevertheless the Treaty of Peace was confirm'd, and the Capitation Tax is portion'd out for the Payment of the Army.

Lublin, March 28. All Preparations are making for holding the Tribunal in this City, and the Lodgings for the Deputies are taken up.

Pofen, April 3. The Starost Kopanicky, who is named by the Republick to go to the Czar, kept his Easter at Babymose, and then took Post for Holland.

Great Poland, April 9. All the Russian Troops have now entirely evacuated this Waywoodship.

From the Hague Courant, dated April 19.

Gottemburg, March 27. Thro' the many Prizes that have been brought in here, so much Salt is procured, that it is now come to a moderate Price. The Exportation of Iron, Copper, Pitch, Tar, &c. is prohibited, but we hope it will be soon taken off. There being no Money here to purchase the Prizes that are brought in, they are sent to France and other Places to be sold.

From the Amst. Courant, dated April 20.

Copenhagen, April 13. Yesterday three of our Men of War and two Frigates sailed for Norway, to join the Commodore Tordenschiold, and to cruise against the Swedes in the North Sea. Admiral Gabel lies still in our Road, and 'tis believed he will not sail before the English Fleet is arriv'd. This Morning 13 Waggons with the King's Baggage set out for Laland and Falster, and his Majesty follow'd them in the Afternoon.

Hamburg, April 16. By Letters of the 29th of March from Christiania in Norway, we hear that Commodore Tordenschiold would sail in eight or ten Days Time, with four Men of War, five Frigates, and ten large Gallies, to block up the Havens of Gottemburg and Marstrand. We have Letters from Gottemburg which say, that Admiral Lewenhaupt had received an Express from Carelsroon, from the King of Sweden, with Orders, that his Majesty having near got the Grand Fleet ready, he as Admiral must prepare to sail, and that he should by the next Express, send him his full Orders, for pursuing the great Designs that are projected. The Swedes that are here pretend to have Letters, which say that the Swedish Fleet consisting of about 20 Men of War were put to Sea, with 15 or 16000 Land Men on board, to make a Descent upon Holstein, and that the King himself design'd to be on board the Fleet; but this needs Confirmation. This Morning the French Envoy the Count de la Marc arrived here, and went to lodge at the House of the French Minister M. Poussin, but he will go suddenly to Denmark, and from thence to the Swedish Court.

From the Hague Courant, dated April 21.

Hamburg, April 16. Letters from Bremen advise, that upon Report that some Ships laden with Corn lay in the Weeser ready to sail for Gottemburg, the King of Great Britain had given Order to his Regency at Staden, to send some Men to the Coast, and the Haven of Bremen, immediately, to hinder the Departure of those Ships; and accordingly a good Number of Troops are posted there. They write from Copenhagen of the 13th, that 3 Men of War and 2 Frigates that were design'd for Norway, were countermanded, upon Advice of the Gottemburg Squadron, and now lie with the rest of the Danish Fleet in the Road, ready to sail as soon as the British Fleet arrives. The Cruizers that have been sent abroad are hourly expected in again, and upon the Advice they bring, the further designs will be form'd. Thirty Ships have been lately brought by the Swedes into Gottemburg, whereof 22 are Dutch, 6 English, 2 Hamburgers, and 4 Danish.

From the Amst. Courant, dated April 20.

Vienna April 7. The Count de Molar is gone to meet the Dutchess of Blankenburg Woltembettel, the Empress's Mother, and conduct her hither. We hear from Croatia, that General Drascowitz had sent a Party to attack and burn a Turkish Palanka not far from Novi, and named Attach, which was successfully effected; which Party besides 30 Prisoners, brought back with them a good Booty. We have not yet the full Account of the late sharp Action not far from Belgrade, whereof we have formerly spoken; but we are assur'd that the Imperialists took 3 Frigates of 19 Guns each, and that the Action cost us 300 Men, and that the Turks lost in it 800 Men. Our Court does not think fit to agree to the Demand of the Wallachian Boyars, that their Country should be govern'd by an Hospodar of their own, without other Dependence than a constant Tribute, by reason that the Inhabitants are a fickle People, on whom there can be no Dependence. But they have treated them in a very civil Manner, and sent them away with Hopes. 'Tis said that our Ships will again attempt, with a favourable Wind, to sail by Belgrade to Banzova; and that if this succeeds, General Mercy will again attempt to take Orsova. 'Tis computed that the Army will cost 700000 Florins a Month, besides the extraordinary Expences that the Siege of Belgrade may require; and that Sum will be constantly paid to the Imperial Commissary at War, who is contracted with to provide all things for the Army: So that no Want may happen. In Regard that there is no Grass upon the Ground yet, by reason of the Backwardness of the Spring, 'tis found that 'twill be impracticable for the Army to take the Field till towards the End of May.

London, March 16. 1717

On Thursday Night arriv'd a Mail from France, and Yesterday arriv'd the Mail of Tuesday last from Holland, but that of Friday before is still wanting.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated March 23.

Genoa, March 4.

TH E Adherents of the Pretender pass by here in Troops going to Rome. He himself arriv'd some Days ago near Turin, but 'tis reported he is gone forward towards the Milaneze in his Journey to Urbino, where 'tis said he will reside. On the 2d Instant in the Evening, an English Ship named the Good Success, which was in our Port amidst 30 or 40 other Ships, took Fire. She was newly tarreen'd, and ready to sail to load with Brandy at Agde in Languedoc. It being believ'd that there was no Powder on board, the Inhabitants were pretty easy, but when the Seamen came aboard to save themselves, and declar'd that there was 90 Barrels in the Hold, the whole Town was alarm'd, and the Streets were in an Instant fill'd with Men, Women and Children, who abandon'd their Houses to fly to the Mountains about the City. The Fire having at last burnt the Cables of the Anchors, the Ship got loose all on Fire, and run upon the Mercury, another English Ship, but the Seamen of it had the Courage and Skill to get her off. Then she drove upon one of the Fortresses of the City, but being by this time burnt low enough for some Water to get in, a great part of the Powder was wetted, which prevented much of the Disorder that must else have happened: However, the Fire having caught hold of that Powder that was dry, the Ship blew up with a terrible Noise, and very much shatter'd the Fortrefs. Many Chimneys of Houses in the City were overturn'd, all the Windows broken, and many Houses shatter'd. There was but one Seaman aboard, who lost his Life, and 5 or 6 Soldiers in the Fortrefs were wounded.

From the Amst. Courant, dated March 23.

Warsaw, March 9. Our Court has received Letters from the Czar of Muscovy, to desire that the Russian Troops, who come out of the Mecklenburg may march thro' Poland; with his Czarish Majesty's Assurance, both to the King and the Republick, that he shall always stand by the late concluded Treaty, and oppose all Violations of it. Many Lords and Ladies have solicited the King for Pardon for the Commander Overbeck, but in vain. Count Flemming is gone to Berlin, but the King intends to keep his Easter here, before he goes to Saxony.

Hamburg, March 16. We hear from Sweden, that the King is gone to Gottemburg, to make some Dispositions for his Squadron, which lies in that Haven ready to sail.

Hamburg, March 19. We have Advice from good Hands, that the young Duke of Holstein was with the King of Sweden at Carelsroon, and has obtained of that Prince the Discharge of all the Holstein Ships and Goods that were under Confiscation. The same Advices say, it appears probable that the Swedish Fleet will put to Sea next Month. By Letters from Gottemburg and Schoonen we hear, that the King of Sweden would not receive the Letters brought by Expres from England, concerning the Negotiations of his Ministers, and that his Majesty was gone from Gottemburg to his Army, which lies on the Northern Borders not far from Swinesund. The Holstein Counsellour Callischen who was seized at Rotemburg, is released again.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated March 23.

Hague, March 21. On the 19th in the Evening, the Czar of Muscovy with his Consort the Czarina, arrived here from Amsterdam, and took their Lodging at Prince Kurakin's. And Yesterday Morning the States General made a Deputation of 9 of their Members to compliment their Majesties. The same Day the Czar accompany'd by Prince Kurakin, took a Walk to Schieveling, and as he came back dined at Zorgvliet, the Pleasure House of the Duke of Portland.

From the Paris News Letter.

Paris, March 20. The Four Bishops formerly mentioned, who protested against the Constitution, and who were only retired to Places near this City, have (contrary to what we said in our last) received Privy Seals requiring them to retire elsewhere. But 'tis said notwithstanding, that there are 32 Bishops who declare themselves of the Party with these Four. The Chamber of Justice which was to have been put an End to the 19th, is continued to the 22d; on which Day 'twill be entirely suppress'd, and the Affairs that would come before them, will be distributed to the Tournelle, the Court of Aydes, and the Chamber of Accounts. One of the principal Members of the Chamber of Justice having, with the Duke de Noailles Chief of the Council of the Regency, been to wait upon M. the Duke Regent, to represent to him, that it was convenient that that Chamber should continue 3 Months longer; His Royal Highness answer'd in an extraordinary Tone, that the Determination of it should not be deferr'd three Hours, and if he had foreseen what it would be, it should never have establish'd. Since the Bishops of Mirepoix, Senez, Montpellier and Boulogne made their Appeal from the Constitution to a General Council, almost all the Ecclesiasticks of this Diocese, both Secular and Regular, have made the like Appeals, which they have delivered to the Greffier of the Officiality of the Procureur General. And the University have likewise resolv'd to adhere to that Appeal. The four Bishops are visited by great Numbers of the Clergy and Gentry, among whom some of the best Quality. The Prince of Dombes eldest Son of the Duke du Maine, is preparing his Equipage with all Diligence, to go to serve this Campaign in Hungary as a Volunteer in the Emperors Army. The Prince of Conti has also obtained Leave to go thither, but he will take his Equipage at Munick. The Count de Charalois, and several other Princes and Noblemen, to the Number of Forty will go thither likewise.

The Affair of the Abbess of the Cordeliers of this City, which has made a great Noise in this Kingdom, was at last adjudg'd and finally concluded Yesterday by an Arrêt in her Favour, whereby she is restored, and all the Proceedings against her are declared abusive. M. de la Moignon Advocate General, pleaded from 8 in the Morning till Noon with great Eloquence, and made it appear, that the Jansenism whereof she was accus'd, and the Discourses she had held against the Constitution, were the sole Cause of the Troubles she had undergone, and of the Deposition from the Dignity of Abbess which had been pronounced against her. He also represented, that the three Books of Statutes of the Cordeliers, which had been made use of against her, were contrary to the King, the Parliament, the Bishops, and the Liberties of the Church, and demanded that they should be suppress'd, and that none be made use of but such Statutes only as are authorized by Letters Patents and register'd in Parliament. The first President having caus'd every body to be put out, and the Court shut up, put the Matter into Deliberation, which lasted till two a-Clock. And then the Doors being opened, Sentence was pronounc'd, whereby all the Proceedings against the Abbess are declar'd abusive; the Abbess restor'd; the Statutes suppress'd; and that they shall make use of no Statutes, but by Letters Patents register'd; and that this Arrêt
